a honeymoon wishlist

One of the most fun things a couple gets to do together before their wedding is the filling out of their gift registry. It gives the couple a chance to have fun together and pick out all the things that they need for their new lives together. But many couples have a lot of the items they already need for their future lives. Whether it is because they lived together before the marriage, which is a growing trend, or they lived separately, many couples are presented with the problem of already having most of what they need. In some cases they have more than what they need. And how many couples really need two toasters? Most couples don't want to ask for cash, because it can be a little awkward and it's bad etiquette. So what can you do?

If you are finding yourself in this predicament, or are just not interested in unwrapping bath towels; there is an alternative to the traditional gift registry. It's called a honeymoon registry. This is where couples are able to go online and select things that they would like to get for their honeymoon. It could be a massage, a romantic dinner, or anything else that you might desire on your honeymoon.

One place that couples can make one of these registries is a site called honeymoonwishes.com. It allows the bride and groom to customize a registry that specifically fits their needs. They can ask for airfare, a room upgrade, and more. But that's not all. This site also allows for a special bride and groom website showcasing their story or any other information they wish to share. They can also put up a photo album full of great couple shots and more. It's a great site for the couple that has everything they need. So, if you're a couple that is looking for great honeymoon adventures go create a honeymoon gift registry!
